

Approach

Increasingly, organizations have to implement complex products and services quickly while also adapting to rapidly changing conditions — both internal and external. It can be challenging amid all that work to focus on your core business.

FourthPillar provides interim support when you need it so you can:

- Plan and execute multifaceted initiatives
- Optimize processes and mitigate risk
- Maintain a steady focus during changing times
- Sustain performance and growth for the long term

Customized On-Site Services

We know the needs will be different for every client and project, and that change is the one constant. For this reason, we don't follow a cookie-cutter methodology but rather a flexible and focused process that hones in on your organization's specific needs.

While we adapt our process to fit each project, it typically encompasses four phases.

1. Assess

First we sit down with your key stakeholders and build a deep understanding of the current state: the project and your culture, capabilities, and goals, and how it all fits into the larger environment. We listen closely and nonjudgmentally, and we examine everything — pain points included — with a realistic eye.

2. Plan

----------------------	----------------------	----------------------

Working together with you and your team, we develop a strategic plan designed around your needs, your people, and your goals for the future. We ensure the plan takes into account critical factors like technology capabilities, concurrent initiatives, governance, and potential risks.

3. Deliver

As we execute on the plan in collaboration with your team, we're right there to work with you through any new challenges that may arise and ensure project goals are on track. We won't hesitate to adjust the plan along the way, if needed, to deliver immediate results while focusing on sustainability for the long term.

4. Measure

A successful implementation that's truly sustainable requires careful evaluation along the way. While taking a holistic view, FourthPillar consultants are experts in analytics and big data — not only can we spot patterns, trends, and opportunities for improvement, we're also skilled at translating analytics into action.
